Oil Site Ires City

Prosecution of the owners of an oil well site at Crenshaw Blvd. and 236th St. was ordered by the City Council unless the property is cleaned up and properly fenced by the time a 60 day notice expires. "The trailer at the oil well has an All-American City sticker on it. That's one thing I like, but it's the only thing," declared Mayor Albert Isen. Councilman Victor E. Benstead said that something should be done to change the ordinance to provide for a standard in fencing around oil well machinery and sumps. Planning Director George Powell told the council that fences have been provided around moving machinery parts but that no fence had been erected around the sumps. He said that the city ordinance "is not worth the paper it is written on," and claimed that in six years not one conviction had been obtained against violators of the ordinance.
